CATHOLICS ANSWER REPLY OF TUMULTY ON MEXICAN ISSUE

Statements Given Publicity by Mgr.
F. C. Kelley and Rev. R. H. Tierney at Chicago.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Dec. 6.—Statement in reply to the recent letter in which Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, explained from an administrative standpoint the situation in Mexico, as regards the Catholic church, are made public here. One is by Mgr. Francis C. Keeler, president of the Catholic Church Extension Society, the other by the Rev. R. H. Tierney, editor of the Catholic weekly, "America" and both renew criticism of President Wilson's policy in Mexico. The Carranza government under which Mgr. Keeler, religious liberty is being denied to the people of Mexico.

If the files of the Department of State are without official records to prove the "dastardly" charge, encourages committed upon nuns by Mr. Revolutionists, there are official records in other places, copies of which have been offered to the Department of State. I happen to have some of them myself, given under oath, have one in particular that has never been the light of day. But is Mr. Tumbull in order to disprove all the charges against religion through denying one? Even if we grant all his contentions, there still remains a great burden of this absolutely unexplained. One thing is certain, Mr. Tumulty is the worst of the agitators to be given out, for it stands to reason that no names are going to be mentioned; not for the Revolutionists' sake, or for Mr. Tumulty's sake, but rather for the sake of the poor victims of the murders, the looting, the stealing, the closing of churches, etc., etc. have been admitted or overlooked again by the Revolutionists themselves. It is most extraordinary that Mr. Tumulty could make the statement so seriously that the officers of the American Legion "never heard of the American Legion being committed." The fact of the matter is that the story first came to my Knowledge through one who received from naval officers of both the army and navy. One of these officers, and he not only corroborated what I had heard, but gave me additional facts. However,

I am not sure of the name as that of the man. While I have the name as that of his signature, I do not propose to have him dismissed from the army, or have his life in the hands of a man who is not a naval officer. I have heard that many were being taken from the army and sent into the navy. I have heard that the number of men who remain in the army is negligible. How many of them will never be heard

A rather strange thing it is that Mr. Tammuly should have been an authority on the very Rev. Antonio de Padua, the Roman Catholic Vicar-General of the Archdiocese of Mexico City. When Mr. Bryan was Secretary of State, he was once consulted by me for a copy of the statement of Cardinal Padua and informed me that he was going to give it to the press. Through Dudley Field Malone of New York, I gave Mr. Bryan information as to who this Antonio J. Guedes was. I told him that the very Rev. Vicar-General of Mexico City was not the man who had been appointed by Carranza to that office, despite the fact that the Constitution of Mexico proclaims that there is no union in that country between Church and State. The Venerable Archbishop of Mexico City, however, as Father Tierney says in order to avoid a further scandal allowed Paredes to act as a matter of fact, very few of the clergy of Mexico City pay any attention to him, but recognize the authority of the Archbishop. The General Carranza, Antonio J. Paredes is today knocking around Mexico City with a Revolutionary uniform on. It is he who, taken as a nominal priest, was the one who was other priests from Morelia. A number of them were sent to the prison along with the poor prisoners to have them sign a document favorable to Carranza. This is the sort of an "authority" that Carranza has. It is a matter of interest in this connection to note that Mr. Bryan, when he learned about Carranza Paredes, did not give his state a public press, as he had intended. This fact must have been known to Mr. Tumulty.

Surely Mr. Tumulty is not innocent enough to really believe that the press in Carranza's hands would be tended to be kept.

He can explain the persecution which has broken out since in Morelia and in Yucatan.

Card. Ruiz explain that, contrary to popular belief, the Constitution, clergymen may not own longer even hold real estate property in Mexico?—not Catholic clergymen alone, but all clergymen. The very homes that sheltered the poor priests of even the country districts are now to be taken from them by decree. Clergymen are declared incapable of holding property in Morelia, and this because clergymen are rich, but because clergymen are rich, but because they are settled intention of the Revolutionists to drive God out of Mexico.

Not Catholic Question.

This is not a Catholic question, and the interests of the Catholic church are not alone at stake. The question that concerns the fundamental principles of democracy, which President Wilson is bound to uphold, as the head of the greatest democracy in the world, is whether or not Catholics, if God is not going to be admitted into Mexico, what about the missions established by Protestant churches with the expenditure of enormous amounts of money? Carranza may answer, "Why are you going to interfere with the Protestant missions?" But thoughtful Protestant could accept missions under such circumstances, because he would then be accepting the special privileges against which he has so constantly railed, and carry on his work in the same manner.

I have constantly pointed out, even to President Wilson himself, the fact that the Church in Mexico is not asking for any kind of what-ever. The demand is for religious liberty as it exists in the United States.

It is interesting to read, over the signature of the Secretary to the President, that the "Latin-American countries joining in the conferences, and the recognition are all of them Catholic." I think Mr. Roosevelt will enlighten us as to whether or not any representations were made by these countries, and others, as to religious liberty. I think he does not care to so enlighten, the policy perhaps the public will be enlightened later on. As I said in my cablegram from Rome to the Chicago Tribune, this is not a question of persons; it is a question of principles. The church can live under Carranza with anybody else, and when a lawful government is set up in Mexico, it is the duty of the church, following its principle of non-resistance, to under it; but the unfortunate people who believe in God in Mexico have a right to religious freedom. That right has been denied them, and is being denied them by the de facto Government, supported by the President of the United States.

WILL CORNER PUT SUGAR PRICES, UP

Reported in Chicago Markets That War Orders Will Give Manipulators
Chance to Raise Prices.
Are the manipulations of the clever sugar gamblers in New York going to boost the prices of sugar, both cane and beet, to ten cents a pound. At the Janesville Wholesale Grocery, a spokesman said the firm quoted at $3.00 f. o. b. New York, beet sugar at $5.65 f. o. b. New York. The freight is 33 1/2 cents per hundred and the price is due to a fifty cent raise in the raw material last week.

According to the Chicago Herald, manipulation of the sugar market has been a special feature of the New York market. The firm is responsible for present prices of granulated sugar and may cause an increase to 10 cents a pound, retail, within the

It was stated by him that war orders for sugar have caused the situation whereby the speculators are reaping a harvest at the expense of the American public. Speculators have

"Most of the raw sugar that goes to the eastern refineries comes from Cuba, Porto Rico and other places in the West Indies. I am sure cane sugar is raised in Texas and Louisiana, but not in a quantity sufficient to supply this country.

"Many of the big eastern refineries placed large contracts with view to delivering a good-sized order of sugar to the number of warring nations in Europe. A goodly share of these orders specified delivery in December and January.

"Not long ago, however, it was indicated that the present crop in Cuba

"Whether there was a pool or not the speculators did succeed in getting what amounts to a corner on the crop of raw materials that they needed. The price of the raw materials and the refineries are today paying them so much for it that they are losing money on it. They are losing more than they are making on it, even when they can fill them."

"Consequently the refineries have had to put up the price for the finished materials that the United States has with the result that the price for country must now pay something like 7 cents a pound for the same quality of sugar that retailed for 5 and 6 cents a pound a little while ago.

"The other factor, no reason why the high price should have another factor enters into the situation—the beet sugar people, who are making the harvest of their lives out of the opportunity given them by the cane sugar situation."

Record Sugar Beet Crop.

"To realize this situation, it must be remembered that the crop of sugar beets in the United States this year was the biggest this country ever had and that the beet sugar refineries got their raw product at comparatively low prices."

market will be higher, but I believe the new Cuban crop will start coming in during the next thirty days. This naturally will bring prices down. I do not think the retail prices will touch 10 cents a pound."

STUDIES VS. ATHLETICS.

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, but the same is true if turned around. To the average student in their teens the school discipline and the school restrictions seem most irksome. They firmly believe that all the instructors having charge of their education are trying to do is to antagonize them, curtail their pleasures and limit their athletic activities if such activities are contrary to school rules.

They fail to realize that the taxpayers of the community are paying for the educational privileges they are enjoying and paying a good round sum, too. They do not understand that to meet the requirements of life when they must struggle for themselves; they must have adequate training and be as well equipped as possible for the ever increasing contest of brain versus brain. The only way possible for this to be accomplished is to absorb all the educational advantages that the schools offer.

Athletics play an important part in school life. It is unfortunate that many students do not take part in them, but that athletes conflict with school discipline and school requirements then they are a detriment rather than a benefit to the student and to the whole community. The one great lesson to be learned in life is discipline and obedience to the law. Failure to comply with school restrictions is not a good training for the future. Just as present some of the local high school athletes feel aggrieved because they are being disciplined, but the whole school also suffers by their act and consequently the student body lay the blame upon the instructors who enforce the discipline rather than upon the real cause of the trouble.

Just at present there is a wave for purely amateur athletics in the high schools. This fall has witnessed scores of athletes in large colleges and universities disqualified from future participation in athletic events of their colleges for infringements on the rules of the professional and non-professional classes. In order to do away with one of the abuses summer baseball, the executive committee of the Big Nine has done away with baseball entirely and refused to condone the act of any athlete who played ball during the summer vacation for money.

If this be true of the larger institutions how much more the necessity for enforcing eligibility rules among the preparatory schools so that no taint of professionalism can rest upon any athlete who takes part in any contest. It is to be hoped the local faculty will see their way clear to re-instate the athletes now under the ban of disapproval, but if they never should be a lesson for future consideration and no matter how hard it seems at this time it should be remembered that the schools are for educational purposes and not purely athletic prowess.

MORE BLESSED TO GIVE.

It is more blessed to give than to receive. This should be remembered at this holiday period and the homes where happiness and plenty abound should not forget there are other homes where want and poverty exist. The Associated Charities does a wonderful work among the unfortunates of the city each year.

The right hand does not always know what the left hand does, but rest assured that the right hand as extended by the Associated Charities never goes amiss, and the funds delivered into the keeping of this organization find the proper channel of distribution.

Once more they make their appeal for funds and new toys for the Christmas season. May their request not be made in vain. May the response be most liberal.

Money is needed to tide over many a family through the long winter months. Toys are needed that the children of the household may not lose faith in Santa Claus and human nature.

In making your own selections for your Christmas gifts for your own little people lay aside something for those less fortunate.

The Gazette has consented to be the receiving station for both funds and new toys. They can be left at this office and will be turned over to the ladies and men who comprise this faithful and unselfish band of Christian workers for distribution.

The money should be left with the bookkeeper; the toys can be delivered at the office where they will be tagged and stored away until the time comes for their going to some home which otherwise would be sad and cheerless.

TARIFF DEFICIT.

So cleverly concealed in Mr. McAdoo's statement of the government's finances that it requires an expert accountant to dig it out is the admission that the democratic tariff bill has failed by $124,525,000 to supply the needs of the government for the current year. To the inadvisability of continuing in force a bill which falls so far short of its purpose, and to the grave blunder made by President Wilson in insisting that sugar be put on the free list Mr. McAdoo makes no direct reference, but he does urge that the free sugar clause, which goes into effect May 1st, next, be repealed, estimating that such repeal would obviate a further diminution of the revenues by $15,000,000. Although the United States is not at war, and although the imports have not materially fallen off because of the war, Mr. McAdoo would continue in force the "war tax," from which source he estimates $41,000,000 would be received. Although compelled to admit that the democratic tariff bill has so far failed of its purpose as a revenue measure, and although "A tariff for revenue only" has long been the slogan of the democratic party, neither President Wilson, in his forthcoming annual message, nor Secretary McAdoo in his public statement have the courage to state the fact that the tariff tinkering of this administration has proved a rank failure and that, even from a democratic standpoint, the Underwood bill should be so radically revised as to make it yield sufficient revenue to meet the needs of the government.

PHILIPP'S POSITION.

Despite the bitter attacks of Senator La Follette upon Governor Philipp and his administration he has thus far failed to convince the average reader that the efforts of our governor are not turned in the right direction after years of fruitless experiment in the misuse of public funds for purely political purposes. Of course one expects a political head of the state to receive pay from the taxpayers of the state, to make a bitter personal attack upon the administration for curtailing some of his personal privileges of experimenting with the state government, but like the senator's attack it falls upon deaf ears when the taxpayer is benefited in his pocketbook. Governor Philipp has a hard position to fill, but he is doing his work thoroughly, and it gives the support of an economic legislature in 1917 he will have placed the state upon such a firm financial basis that it would take years of ultra progressive spendthriftism to undo his labor.

It costs $25,000 a year to hire a flat in some New York apartment houses. If they were to have any garments to wear they would like to go to a worthy poor, this newspaper will forward them to these people who are suffering from high living costs.

Tearful parents who fear their boys will never get on the college varsity team may be consoled by the chance of getting some consolation prize like the class valedictorian.

The Daily Novelette

Still Alive.

A man remembers his alphabet. No matter how long is his life: The letters which he forgets, are the ones.

He promised to post for his wife. Upon Cussissem lived in a very lively city. It certainly kept him lively.

One day Upon tried to cross the street. Before this he had thought it safer to part with a nickel and ride over. But, having lately proposed to a little huckleberry blond and been accepted, he thought the future the need of all his present nickels. So he started to walk across.

Now Upon Cussissem was a brave man. He had, unflinchingly looked many a crisis squarely in the face and had never even winked an eyelash. But, brave as he was, this danger before him made his courageous old heart quake. It made him dizzy.

Mustering up all his courage, he put one foot in the street and was nearly run down by a cab. Another step out and he was almost chopped by a motor truck. A fatal step to the left, and a taxi missed him by a hair. A second taxi failed to catch him napping. Another motorcycle didn't run over him owing to long practice dodging them. He reached the curb safely, but slipped on a banana peel. The hospital still collects board from him.

Moral: Stay on your own side of the street.

His Test.

Not naming any names, there is a wife in this town who before letting her husband into the house at night makes him stand on the front porch and repeat the following: "Six little thistle sticks," "Flesh of freshly fried fish," "Two loaves, totally tired, tried to trot to Tedbury," "Give Grimes Jim's great gilt gig whip," "Strict, strong Stephen Strinker snared six sickly silky snakes," "She stood at the door of Mrs. Smith's fish-sauce shop welcoming him in," "Swan swam over the sea; swim, swan, swim; swan swam back again; well swam swan," "A haddock, a haddock, a black spotted haddock, a black spot on the black back of the black haddock," "Susan shined shoes and socks, socks and shoes shined Susan, She censored shining shoes and socks for socks and shoes shined Susan," "The poor, blind old man, blind to the house only three times in a month and then been beasily sober."

The Pendulum of Time. I remember back in eighteen, when Hank Frisby went to school. Everybody in the village had him doped out for a fool. For Hank was a homebody, all the critics in the place said there wasn't no intelligence or learnin' in his face. He was tall, rawboned and knock-kneed and as awkward as a cow. And the gals they always passed him by and never smiled rehow. He was bashful and was awkward and he seemed to have no vim. And the fellows in the school house always poked their fun at him.

Nuthin' much was said about it when he left our town one day. Hardly anybody knowed the fact that he had gone away. Once in a while they'd nestion Hank and wonder where he went. But nobody ever found out, for they didn't care a cent. Nigh a dozen years passed by and then one day a thing occurred. And it caused more lively gossip than the town had ever heard. Great big auto came a-tearin' down the main street with a yank. And the fellow in the back seat givin' orders—he was Hank.

Hank had gone out west and struck a vein of ore both wide and deep. And he picked up half a million while our town folks was asleep. When he jumped out of his auto full o' vigor and of vim, You should have seen the town folks all a-toadyin' to him. He put up a splendid mansion and he wed the village belle. And he has his dinner evenings—or he at least the servants tell us. He's mayor now and owns a mill, a railroad and a bank. And there's no one in the village who ain't mighty proud of Hank.

Mercury Aids Plants.
A scientific investigator of Europe has discovered a new method of destroying fungous disease and household pests by the use of mercury. It is injected in the form of vapor. In other cases it is injected in metallic form directly into the circulating fluids of the plant. The growth of the plant is not only not disturbed, but in most cases actually assisted.

Ibsen's Poor Pathology.
The Lancet takes a fall out of Ibsen in seriously questioning the truth of the theme of his "Ghosts." It doubts very much whether such cases as that of Oswald, in which the awful disease is inherited, are anything but terrible exceptions instead of being "typical, as Ibsen would have us suppose."

AT THE APOLLO.

Elsie Janis on Tuesday.
A delightful photo comedy of the art of love making from the prehistoric down to the present day, will be presented by Bosworth Incorporated, at the Apollo theatre on Tuesday for three regular performances, and a children's matinee at 4:15.
Elsie Janis impersonates three entirely different girls, a bare limbed belle of the Cave Dweller epoch, a refined daughter of the Boston aristocracy of 1885 and an up to the minute New York novelist of the present day. Her athletic vigor as the first, her grace with the difficult crinoline as the second, and her style and charm as the third prove an infinite variety and delight to this extra-moneysworth program.

AT THE APOLLO.

Musical Treat Tonight.
The music lovers of Janesville will have an opportunity of hearing the celebrated soloist, Mr. Paul Hoffman, at the Apollo tonight during the concert to be given by Hougens Chicago Orchestra of eleven pieces.
His concert will come as a treat to the Apollo audience, as in addition to the Paramount picture, "The Voice in the Fog," featuring Donald Brian.
The program tonight will consist of:
1. Overture to "Bohemian Girl." Balfe
2. Violin Solo, "Mazurka Concertante" by Ovide Musin, Mr. Paul Hoffman.
3. "The Village Blacksmith." Wiegand
4. "Night-Break of Dawn" Angelus Belis Striking Morning Hour—Prayer and the Blacksmiths at Their Anvils.
Intermission.
5. Cornet Solo, "Caprice" Herbert L. Clark
6. Mr. Carl H. S. Hougens.
7. Contralto Solo, "The Perfect Song" (Love strain from "The Birth of a Nation")
8. Grand Military Fantasia, "Battle of San Juan Hill." Sweet
Synopsis—Calm of Night, Morning Breaks, Train Leaves With Troops, Approach of Cavalry, The Battle, Victory, Star Spangled Banner.

AT THE APOLLO.

Donald Brian in "The Voice in the Fog."
Donald Brian, the celebrated musical comedy star, will make his photo-dramatic debut in the Jesse L. Lasky production of Harold MacGrath's famous novel, "The Voice in the Fog," at the Apollo on Wednesday. Although Mr. Brian has been identified with the speaking stage for a number of years, and is popular throughout the country, he refused all offers to appear before the moving picture camera until approached by the Lasky Co. It was only at the conclusion of his long New York engagement, as the star in "The Girl from Utah," that he was able to leave and come to California for the filming of the picture.
In "The Voice in the Fog" Mr. Brian is seen as Thomas Webb, a young haberdasher clerk in London, who falls heir to a title, a family jewel and $1,000 in cash. How he loses his title, money and job, and the adventures which befall him in America are graphically told in this motion picture.
In the cast supporting Mr. Brian are such distinguished artists as Ada Gleason, Frank Connor, George Gebhardt, Ernest Joy, Florence Smythe and other members of the Lasky all-star stock company.

AT THE APOLLO.

Hazel Dawn and John Mason Tonight.
The five-part photo-adaptation of "The Fatal Card," the latest Paramount picture at the Apollo tonight, aside from being a faithful screen version of one of the most notable American dramatic successes ever presented in film, is further distinguished by the fact for the first time in the history of feature motion pictures, it jointly presents two artists of such individual importance.

LUXURIANT TITIAN HAIR AND PERFECT FORM ARE HER ASSETS IN SILENT DRAMA

Her Venus-like figure draped in nothing but her thick, luxuriant, golden hair, Miss Grace Valentine is to be seen shortly in the leading role of "Black Fear," a Metro production. Miss Valentine, like many others, deserted the legitimate stage to face a movie camera.

as John Mason and Hazel Dawn. These stage favorites are co-starring by the Famous Players-Charles Frohman Co., in one of the greatest features this sterling producing company has yet presented to the public.
The combination of John Mason and Hazel Dawn on the screen is sufficiently unusual to attract attention wherever this five-part subject is exhibited. But added to this unique claim for notice are the inherent power and national fame of this celebrated stage success. When, in conjunction with these important assets, the splendid and faithful production of the Famous Players-Film Company, and the collective importance of the strong supporting cast are considered, it will be recognized that this Famous Players production is one of the most extraordinary feature subjects ever offered.
"The Fatal Card" will individually do as much to create a further history of pictures, as a further guarantee of the quality of the production.
This picture is in the same class with those masterpieces that the Majestic has been showing at ten and twenty cents, but the management secured a very fortunate contract on this, and is turning over the saving to the theater's patrons by showing it at dime for all performances.
The first showing tonight will start at 7:15, and the picture is booked for Tuesday and Wednesday also.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

William Farnum in "The Plunderer."
Almost every picture-goer in Janesville remembers with a thrill the fight scene in "The Spoilers," the picture in which William Farnum won his first laurels as a photoplayer. And Farnum has given us another scene of the same kind and vigorous appeal in "The Plunderer," where he as Big Bill Matthews, the hero, battles a gang of miners that almost fills the great rough dance hall. It is a hard fight, one that will live long in your memory.
The story of "The Plunderer" was written by Roy Norton, and is well known; it is exactly the type of big, rugged story, best adapted to an actor of Farnum's capabilities. It was Edgar Lewis who made it into picture form, and this, to the student of pictures, is a further guarantee of the quality of the production.
This picture is in the same class with those masterpieces that the Majestic has been showing at ten and twenty cents, but the management secured a very fortunate contract on this, and is turning over the saving to the theater's patrons by showing it at dime for all performances.

AT THE PRINCESS.

"A Fiery Introduction" With Cleo Madison.
A famous actress is about to be introduced to the author of her new play by her manager. A fire breaks out in her apartment, and she flees out to the roof. There she is caught by an attentive stranger. In the meantime the manager and his wife have been bound and gagged by a burglar who, making the actress and the stranger, represents himself as the butler and tells them to make themselves at home. On entering they discover and release the manager and his wife, when the accompanying stranger is recognized as the author of the star's play. The clever situations, the realistic settings, the acting of beautiful Cleo Madison, the novelty of the costumes (night dresses and pajamas) and the unexpected ending make this a film that will tickle you immensely at the Princess tonight.

AT THE PRINCESS.

William Farnum in "The Gilded Fool."
On Wednesday the Princess will present William Farnum in the big Fox feature, "The Gilded Fool." The plot deals with the progress of a young playboy, Short, a trivial "Gilded Fool," who spends his days in idleness and his nights in frivolity. How he meets the "only girl" and through love of her is roused to a realization of his many shortcomings is a story that strikes home to the hardest heart.
The climax comes when, after a heroically fought battle with finance, the erstwhile "Gilded Fool" thwarts the contrivings of a thieving rascal and saves his fiancée's father from ruin.

ON TRIAL

The Story of a Child.

N all within the courtroom save the judge the entrance of the child made visible impression. So fair and bright a child to be brought into the oppressive atmosphere of a courtroom that seemed to be filled with the shadowy presence of a long line of murderers and thieves, abandoned men and women of all sorts, "drug fiends" and the outpourings of humanity. Why, on the very spot on which the child stood when she turned to her "daddy" the brother of a young woman who had been wronged had stood and with a pistol had shot dead the man accused of the wrong. In the very presence of the court! Surely, as Robert Strickland had mused, this was no place for his pretty, winsome little Doris!

Before Doris could be permitted to testify there was a legal formality to be observed. The law does not recognize the competence of a young child to give testimony unless the court is satisfied that the child has been instructed in and understands the meaning of truth-telling. So District Attorney Gray, addressing the court, said: "Your honor, I respectfully ask that the competency of this child to testify be determined."

Arbuckle being willing, Judge Dinsmore asked the little one:

"How old are you, Doris?"

"I'm going to be nine years old on the 6th of November," replied the child.

"And do you go to school?"

"Yes, sir," she replied. "I'm in the grammar school now."

With a view to probing the child's moral training, Judge Dinsmore asked: "Did you ever go to Sunday school?"

"Yes, sir," she replied. "I went every Sunday before mamma went away."

"But now Aunt Helen won't let me go because all the children talk about me and make me cry."

It was in a plaintive voice that Doris told this of the effect on her of the tragedy which had cost a man's life and had brought her beloved "daddy" into the shadow of the electric chair. Throughout the courtroom the sympathy with the little one was apparent, but Robert Strickland did not stir.

"Did you learn in Sunday school that you must always tell the truth?" Judge Dinsmore continued.

"Yes, sir," she replied. "That's one of the Ten Commandments—'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.' That means that you should never tell a lie. Miss Weston told me that. She's my Sunday school teacher. She taught me all the Ten Commandments. Shall I say them for you?"

Here, for almost the first time, a little gleam of humor darkened the tragic scene. The child's eagerness to display her accomplishment made the judge raise his hand in affected horror as he said, "Not now," and many in the courtroom laughed.

Satisfied that little Doris would tell the truth, the judge turned to District Attorney Gray and said:

"I think she may testify," and to Arbuckle, "Proceed, Mr. Arbuckle."

Her full name was "Doris Helen Strickland," the little girl told the lawyer, but the next question, "Who is your father?" seemed to puzzle her. Why should any one ask her who her father was when her "daddy" sat there in court in plain sight of them?

"Why, that's my daddy there!" said Doris, and she jumped from the witness chair and started toward him. Her affection for him was evident. It was plain that she reciprocated the love which had made him beg so passionately that she be kept out of the case.

Arbuckle stopped her and with tenderness lifted her back into the witness chair.

"Robert Strickland is your father?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

And then, with careful, gentle questioning, the lawyer elicited from the little girl the story of that last evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strickland and their little daughter, Doris. Doris remembered the night on which Mr. Trask was shot, she told Arbuckle. Her father had been away from home, buying a house in Cleveland, for them, to live in. He came back that evening. Just before he returned Doris was in the sitting room, at about half past 7. She was waiting for daddy, she said, and while she was waiting she was practicing her piano lesson.

I think she may testify," said Judge Dinsmore.

On the evening of June 24, tiring of her music and agitated by thoughts of her returning daddy, little Doris Strickland left the piano, crossed the room and went behind the sofa to play with her dolls. She was very quiet for a time, so quiet that her mother did not know she was there. Mrs. Strickland entered the room, went to the table whereon the telephone stood and consulted the telephone book before taking the receiver from the book. Then she spoke:

sofa. The appearance of the child startled the mother.

"Doris!" she exclaimed. "Where did you come from?"

"I was sitting behind the sofa, mamma. Was it that nice, soft, black, little purse you lost?"

So the child had overheard the telephone talk! And Robert was coming home that night! Doris must be wanted!

The mother's voice was very quiet and earnest, and the words came slowly as she said:

"Listen to me, Doris, dear. When daddy comes I don't want you to say anything to him about the purse. He'll be angry if he knows it's lost, and then he'll worry about it. You don't want to worry daddy, do you?"

"No, but, mamma, weren't you shopping yesterday?"

"Of course, dear."

"But you told the man you were at Long Branch."

"It was a friend of mine who was there," said Mrs. Strickland. "I loaned her the purse, and she lost it."

"Who was it?" asked Doris.

"You don't know her, dear."

"Why did you lend her your purse?"

"Because she hadn't any money of her own."

There was a puzzled look on the child's face as she replied. As she told Judge Dinsmore later, she had been trained, and by the very mother who was now nibbling to her, to tell the truth in all circumstances. So she said:

"But, mamma, wasn't it fibbing to tell the man?"

"No," she explained some other time. Now promise mamma you won't say anything."

"I promise," said little Doris.

And now came a great event in the life of Doris—the homecoming after a few days' absence of her dearly beloved daddy. She had missed him greatly, so that it was with great joy she heard his voice in the anteroom saying to the Stricklands' maid:

"Hello, Bertha! How are you? Everybody all right?"

Almost before Bertha could reply Doris ran from the room, crying:

"It's daddy, mamma! It's daddy!"

Still outside the room in which his wife waited, silent, for him, Strickland called out:

"Yes, it's your old daddy. Hello, sweetheart!"

There was a boisterous meeting of father and little daughter in the anteroom.

"Hello, daddy dear! What have you got for me?" asked Doris.

"Something wonderful!" replied Strickland. "Give me another kiss. Are you glad to see your daddy?"

"Oh, mamma and I have been so lonesome!"

"Where is mamma?"

"In here," said Doris, and she took her daddy by the hand and led him into the sitting room. At one side stood the wife. At the other side entered she made one step toward him and then hesitated, waiting. Strickland was still busied with his little daughter. He handed his traveling bag to her, and she stood holding it in her two small hands, for it was heavy, while May, overcoming her hesitation, ran to her husband. Her voice was affectionate, but high pitched, as she embraced him and said:

"Robert, dear, I'm so glad you're back!"

Her words were sincere, and her outward manner was that of a loving wife, glad to welcome back her husband after an unavoidable separation. To the latter, happy in the reunion with his wife and child, there was nothing strange in the greetings.

But a close observer might have noted that the manner of May Strickland at this time was strained and unnatural, almost hysterical. She was keyed to too high a point. Her motions were strained and jerked, as though her limbs moved in response to nerves that were stretched taut. The face she showed to Robert was aglow with welcome, but when he turned aside for a moment to speak with Doris the eyes took on a staring, strained expression in which one might read horror, almost.

Was it the loss of the purse that perturbed her so? Whatever it was, while her husband's attention was distracted by the child, she made a great and successful effort to calm herself. Strickland stilled the clamors of Doris long enough to turn to his wife and say:

"It's good to be back. By Jove, I was homesick!"

"No, I was so anxious to get home that I didn't stop."

"You must be famished, I'll have Bertha get some dinner ready for you. It won't take long."

"Thanks, dear." And to Doris, who had gone to her beloved dolls again, Strickland said, "Come here."

"I'm leaving you in good hands," said May as she left the room to superintend the preparation of her husband's dinner.

FOND OF QUOTATION MARKS

Irish Editor Thought Them Protection Against Libel Suit and Excuse for Eccentric Style.

Judge Bodkin's book of reminiscences contains many good things. Among them is his description of one of the editors under whom he served. John B. Gallagher, who is said never to have read a book in his life. It was he, says the Dublin General Advertiser, who revised the reporter's copy and mercilessly mutilated the manuscript.

He had one curious delusion. He fancied that inverted commas were a protection against a libel action, and stranger still, an excuse for any eccentricities of style. On one occasion Mr. Bodkin, in describing a theatrical performance, wrote that it was "exquisitely amusing." "Old G." cocked his head critically on one side. "I don't like that word 'exquisitely,'" he said. "All right, sir," I answered, "I'll strike it out."

"No, no; it's a good enough word, but it's a little unusual there. Tell you what, we'll quote it."

"Quote it from what?" I asked in amazement. "Oh, it does not matter; just simply quote it." Next morning the Freeman's Journal duly reported that the performance was "exquisitely" amusing.

There is an enduring tenderness in the love of a mother for a son that transcends all other affections of the heart. It is neither to be chilled by selfishness nor daunted by danger nor weakened by worthlessness nor stifled by ingratitude. She will sacrifice every comfort for his convenience; she will surrender every pleasure to his enjoyment; she will glory in his fame and exult in his prosperity; and, if misfortune overtake him, he will be the dearest to her through his misfortunes; and, if disgrace settle upon his name, she will still love and cherish him in spite of his disgrace; and, if all the rest of the world cast him off, she will be all the world to him.—New York Weekly.

Spain's Patron Saint.

St. James the Great is worth noting as of the company of the Great Twelfth Brethren, the Howmer of Mons and the Angels of Neuve Chapelle. Spanish tradition tells how his body was miraculously brought to Compostella and there enshrined, and how the saint arose and, at Clavijo, in 841, mounted on a white horse, slew 60,000 Moors. Hence the Spanish Order of St. James of the Sword, Santiago de Espada.

The minute that hoarse terrifying cough is heard in the home of T. J. Barber, of Jefferson, Ga., out comes Foley's Honey and Tar Compound—there's always a bottle ready.

"Here's what he says: 'Two of my children, one boy and a girl, aged eight and six years respectively, had terrible attacks of croup last winter and I completely cured them with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. I have ten in family and for years I've used Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and it never fails.'"

Benish worry and save doctor bills—keep Foley's Honey and Tar Compound always on hand. In your home. One bottle lasts a long time—it's reliable and safe—and the last dose is as good as the first. Get the genuine.

ANOTHER WOMAN TELLS

How Vinol Made Her Strong.

Beaumont, Ohio.—"I wish all nervous, weak, run-down women could have Vinol. I was so run-down, weak and nervous I could not sleep. Everything I ate hurt me, and the medicine I had taken did me no good. I decided to try Vinol, and before long I could eat anything I wanted and I could sleep all night. Now I am well and strong, and in better health than I have been for years."—Mrs. Anna Millison, Beaumont, Ohio.

Mrs. Murphy didn't wait.

Brown attended a fashionable function in the high society district of the town. While there he was introduced to a Mr. Jones. As they conversed on politics and the price of battieships a woman passed just beyond.

"Did you notice that woman?" asked Brown, turning to his companion.

"She looks as if she were painted."

"Sir," indignantly interposed Jones. "That woman is my wife."

"By Jove," calmly continued Brown, apparently not noticing the interruption, "and had just stepped from her frame to the floor."

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with indigestion, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

AGRICULTURAL and GARDEN DEPT

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

Question—When is the best time to cover strawberries and what should be used?

Answer—If one has a field of strawberries or a very large bed it is necessary to wait until the ground is frozen hard before driving onto it. Otherwise the plants will be injured. But if one does not need to use the team the bed may be covered before the ground is frozen. However, it is safest, all things considered, to wait as there may be danger of mice using the mulch for winter quarters if covered before they are settled for the winter. As to material for covering, if one can secure sorghum cane from the mill that will be found very good, being less likely to blow away than leaves or straw, which may be used to advantage if the canes are not to be used.

Question—Please tell me why my hens do not lay. They laid pretty well during the summer but seem now to have gone on a strike.

Answer—There are a great many reasons why hens do not lay and it is impossible to say any particular flock fails to lay without knowing something in reference to its history and care. No many hens are laying now, as is evident from the soaring price of eggs. However on just that account it is quite desirable they should be laying. It is probable that those in question are common with many thousands of others have not completely recovered from the drain on the system required by the molt. They should however be about ready for egg production again by this time if they are to pay for their keeping this winter. If they do not begin to lay eggs before severe cold weather sets in they are likely not to do so.

until spring. A good way to stimulate laying is to feed fresh meat scraps two or three times a week, watching the character of the droppings closely to see that they are not getting too much. If given in excess the droppings will be too soft and light colored.

Hens to lay must be well fed and watered. Both are important and to feed well includes giving variety. A good mash for laying hens is one mixed in the following proportions by weight: Bran, corn meal, middlings, gluten meal, meat scrap, equal parts, with twice as much bran and half as much linseed meal. For example if one used ten lbs. each of the first four he would use twenty lbs. of bran and five of linseed meal. If feeding fresh meat scrap however it will probably be advisable to omit the linseed meal. Green feed of some kind, cabbage or beets should be given daily and if one has skimmed milk that may be used and the supply of beef scrap cut down. The mash above mentioned may be fed in hoppers or be slightly moistened and fed once or twice a day. But perhaps the most important item of feed is the dry whole grain, corn, wheat, buck wheat, barley, oats and may be fed, and it should be fed in deep water.

Poultry men all agree that the hen that is most profitable is the hen that has to scratch for a living. There seems to be an intimate relation between scratching and egg laying, so the manner of feeding is very important. Let there be plenty of litter of either leaves or straw and when the grain is scattered cover it with the litter and let the hens scratch it out. Change the litter often enough to keep it dry and clean.

WOMAN IS GROWING YOUNGER

Improvement of the Home and Lightening of Its Drudgery is Uplifting the Whole Race.

Our women are carrying their years better. Not only is the length of life increasing, but they are making their youth last longer. They are raising stronger children. There is an uplift to the whole race. Many explanations are offered, but the big cause underlying the whole effect is the improvement of the home and the lightening of its drudgery. There is now more time for improving the members of the family; more time for culture and travel; more time for civic and other public matters.

Staying younger is largely a matter of keeping interested in things, and to keep interested there must be variety, a writer in the Woman's World states. So the current criticism that woman is flying from one thing to another and undertaking too much and wearing out her nerves is not altogether sound. Some of them do, doubtless, but they are the exceptions. Woman's great trouble in the past has been routine.

Doctors found that the reason so many cases of mental disease came from the farms was that farm women did not have enough interests. Their loneliness was disastrous. Now that the farm women have the telephone and the automobile and social societies and other means of diversion and employment, conditions are improving.

So the lessening of woman's work by system and the use of all labor-saving devices possible really means that besides the enjoyment of better hours she has time for things that will broaden and stimulate her mind, and bring her in association with other women and give her the opportunity to be part of the larger life and progress of the age.

WHAT DIABETICS SHOULD EAT

Famous Specialist Gives a Safe Diet for Persons With Tendency to That Disease.

Many folk ask what is a safe diet for a person suffering from a tendency to diabetes. Dr. Arnold Leland of Carlsbad, a famous specialist in diabetes and author of a book on the subject, says that the following foods may be eaten: Milk, rice, eggs, green vegetables in large quantities, especially spinach; white flaked fish, cakes made of buckwheat, from which the cellulose has been removed, macaroni, spaghetti, butter, small quantities of rye and Graham bread, potatoes (fried or in the form of salad), oyster plant, cauliflower, salads, apples cooked or raw, strawberries, cranberries, nuckleberries, oranges and most fruits.

The same authority forbids the following: Sugar, meat, meat soups, lentils, peas and beans (except the soy bean), most of the cereals, white bread, candy, beer and other alcoholic drinks.

If some sweetening be desired in coffee and tea saccharin may be used, but it should be remembered that this is more than six hundred times as sweet as sugar, so a very minute quantity of it is enough.

Youth and Age.

Physicians have for some time about made up their minds that the use of oxygen in lung affections of the aged is, in spite of the promise at its introduction, of very little service, unless perhaps to prolong fading life for a few hours. It is interesting to find, then, that just at this time comes the announcement that this gas in connection with mechanical artificial respiration may actually be life saving for infants just born, in whom breathing has not been established normally as yet.

Such is the way of life. Young initial vitality can take advantage of the slightest help offered to it. Age with waning vital force loses its grasp even of what seems sure aid. Youth will be served.

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

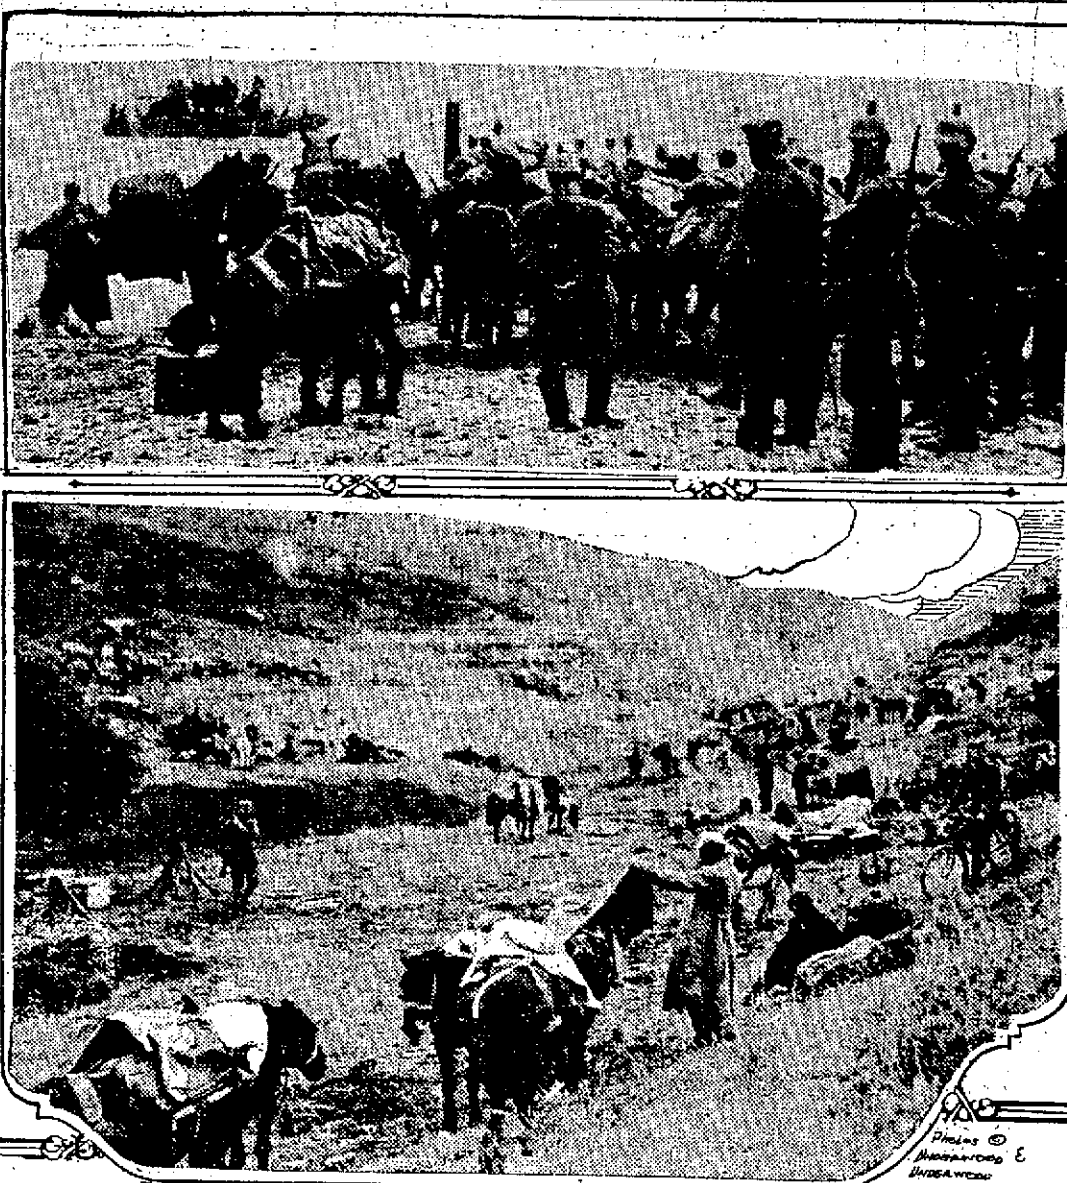

If Your Back is Aching or Bladder Bothers, Drink Lots of Water and Eat Less Meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean, like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much, also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Exercise of Choice.
The human faculties of perception, judgment, discriminative feeling, mental activity, and even moral preference, are exercised only in making a choice. He who does anything because it is the custom makes no choice. He gains no practice either in discerning or desiring what is best. The mental and moral, like the muscular powers, are improved only by being used. The faculties are called into no exercise by doing a thing merely because others do it.

He who lets the world or his own portion of it, choose his plan of life for him has no need of any other faculty than the apellike one of imitation. He who chooses his plan for himself employs all his faculties.—John Stuart Mill.

Branding the Innocent.
When a witness under cross-examination is admonished to answer "Yes" or "No" to all questions and is then asked "Have you ever stopped beating your wife?" he feels that something is wrong with a system of court procedure that puts him in that position. Either "yes" or "no" convicts him for beating his wife at some time or other. Such trick questions are heard in court every day and the witness gets little satisfaction out of the assurance that he can explain on re-examination if the lawyer on his side of the case thinks it worth while to give him a chance and does not forget to do so.—New York Commercial.

THERE IS A VAST ARMY

of men and women who really never know what it is to enjoy sound, vibrant health—who would be surprised to suddenly gain that exhilarating vitality that robust health brings.

Literally thousands without any particular sickness live in "general debility", as the doctors call it—have headaches, are tired and indifferent. To all such people we say with unmistakable earnestness—"Take Scott's Emulsion after meals for one month and allow its rare oil-ford to enrich and enliven your blood, quicken your circulation, stimulate nutrition, and aid nature to develop that real red-blooded life that means activity, enjoyment, success."

Scott's Emulsion is not a drug, but a pleasant food- tonic—free from alcohol. One bottle may help you.

JAPANESE SUPPLYING TOYS FOR THE BRITISH CHRISTMAS SEASON.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Dec. 6.—Japan has helped out the English Christmas shopping season by providing the bazaars with enough toys to supply the war deficit. Before the war, Germany controlled almost the entire British toy trade. English toy industries have since started up, but could not fill all of the orders from the shops. Then an importing firm sent samples of German toys to Japan. In some ways the Japanese output has exceeded expectations. The new Japanese toys include clockwork animals, such as jumping dogs and horses, chess speaking dolls, and imitation skin animals. While not a musical peacemaker in the European sense, the Japanese also manufacture toy musical instruments.

SPORTS

FATE OF SUMMER BALL RULE WILL BE BROUGHT UP AT ATHLETIC MEET.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) New York, Dec. 6.—Summer baseball, the status of athletes who have accepted something besides medals for demonstrating their prowess, and other problems which have troubled amateur sports governing bodies for many years, will be discussed in detail and somehow regulated at a conference of amateur governing organizations in New York December 27th.

The conference is to precede the annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, December 28th. Invitations have been sent to the Amateur Athletic Union, the Intercollegiate Association of the Amateur Athletes of America, also to amateur polo, tennis, golf and hockey organizations, to attend.

While sportsmen who have called the conference do not plan to adopt blanket rules for all amateurs, they hope to arrange a working agreement whereby each organization will stand sponsor for the amateurism of its own division, when the latter competes in another sport. Harmony and co-operation among the various sports-governing authorities will be sought. Not that there's any row between them now, but they just never have gotten together.

CONFERENCE BASEBALL BURIED BY COMMITTEE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Chicago, Ill., Dec. 6.—Members of the Big Nine faculty committee on Saturday sounded the death knell of baseball as an intercollegiate sport in the conference. In addition to refusing, by a top-heavy vote, to sanction summer baseball playing by their athletes, the committee voted to refer to each institution a resolution providing for the abolition of the diamond sport entirely, except for intramural contests.

As most of the delegates voted under instructions, it is presumed that the colleges will support their resolution and that intercollegiate baseball will be given up before the spring season starts. An objection by only one university, however, will force a reconsideration of the resolution by the committee and unless a special meeting of the committee is called for the reconsideration before its regular June meeting, the single objection

GANDIL WON'T GUARD FIRST FOR CHICAGO

Clark Griffith thinks some of parting with Chick Gandil, but Chick vows he'll never go to the White Sox. It was Chicago that sent him back to the minors. He has always held that he was unjustly used in being turned back.

any bearing on the rumor that the Feds would like to enlist the Western Association with them is not stated.

Word comes from Tulsa that Jack O'Connor, once a major league catcher and afterward manager of a league and now a rising young attorney in Massachusetts, has been named as the new manager of the Tulsa team. O'Connor is a Dartmouth graduate and was a famous athlete in college before becoming a professional ball player. He graduated from Dartmouth in 1900.

Manager Rowdy Elliott of the Oakland team refuses to be disturbed by the stories that Jimmy Johnson, Cincinnati pitcher, Rube Wright, and even Jack Johnson, the boxer, are planning to join the team. Let them jump, says Elliott. He figures that by spring these grasshoppers will find there is nothing to jump to, and that they will be in a humble pie eating mood, which will be to the Oakland club's advantage.

Report from Dayton is that Johnny Nee will return to manage the team there next year. Nee, after winning a pennant in 1914, "retired" from the game, only to bob up again late in the season of 1915, having concluded that baseball after all is a pretty good proposition. It does a ball player good to "retire" once in a while, for he then learns what a hard time other people have making a living.

Mobile people interested in retaining the Southern league franchise are considering several propositions. One is for lease of the club to Lev Whistler, the old Southern league manager, who has been out of baseball for several years. It is reported Whistler has offered to take over the franchise and guarantee Mobile baseball, but that he will not consider assuming any of the Mobile club's old debts.

ROW IS EXPERIENCED OVER VACCINATION IN CITY OF CLEVELAND.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Cleveland, O., Dec. 6.—Once more is Edmund Vance Cooke, poet and author, at the head of a hot anti-vaccination fight in Cleveland. To vaccinate or not to vaccinate is the question being disputed by the parents and other relatives of Cleveland's 50,000 unvaccinated boys and girls of school age. There are 90,000 school children here altogether. A report issued by the Cleveland Foundation school survey committee, opposed to Cooke's faction, predicts a repetition of the 1902 smallpox epidemic in which 224 persons died, unless the 1512 city ordinances requiring all school children to be vaccinated, is enforced at once.

Cooke led the anti-vaccination fight in 1910, winning it after a hard fight. He resumed the fight immediately the question came up again. His contention is that as many deaths result from the effects of vaccination as result from the diseases to be prevented, which the vaccination is performed.

"The preventive is as bad as the disease," said Cooke today, "and right now, when there is no epidemic, is the time to settle this question once and for all." Cooke's failure to enforce the ordinance, School Superintendent Frederick may be fined $200 and imprisoned for 60 days, in each case, which would make about 8,000 years for him to serve if he does not vaccinate the children and the ordinance is strictly enforced.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Wis., Dec. 6.—The Favorite Concert company from Chicago gave a very interesting concert in the church at Fulton Saturday evening. A large audience was on hand to hear several first class artists, many motoring from this city to attend.

Fruits in Cold Storage.

Experiments by scientists have shown that fruits breathe and that cold storage delays their ripening by causing them to breathe more slowly than normally.

HEAVY FRUIT CROPS IN GERMANY THIS YEAR WILL BE CONSERVED.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Berlin, Dec. 6.—The unusually large crop of fruit throughout Germany this fall has made unnecessary the existence of a conservation organization known as the "War Committee of the Fruit Manufacturing Industry." This committee of manufacturers, who preserve and market fruit, was formed when it was feared that large quantities of fruit would go to waste unless some step was taken to make it into substitutes for butter and fat.

Individual manufacturers all over Germany have taken the initiative themselves, however, and report that because of the good season they have produced twice and in some cases three times as much marmalade as usual. Virtually all the rest of the crop not canned has been eaten, as German cities have imported carloads of apples, pears and the like for their populations. Germany not only has eaten an unprecedented amount of fruit this year, but has also a record amount of preserved fruit on hand for future needs.

PREPAREDNESS PROGRAM AC-COUNTS FOR $167,000,000 AP-PROPRIATION INCREASE.

HUGE SUMS ASKED FOR

Practically All Departments of Government Demanded Additional Funds to Carry on Activities.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Estimates for the most elaborate program of expenditures ever asked of an American congress in times of peace were submitted today proposing a total outlay of $1,255,857,808 or $170,853,814 more than was appropriated last year. The great increase is almost wholly due to the administration plans for military preparedness. More than $116,000,000 of the total is for direct expenditures on the army and navy, with millions more to be used in coast defense and other fortification work. By establishments the amounts asked are:

Legislative $ 7,573,372
Executive 30,807,950
Judicial 1,368,500
Agriculture 24,159,089
Foreign Intercourse 5,426,599
Military 152,854,250
Naval 215,618,072
Indian Affairs 10,175,036
Pensions 160,555,000
Internal Revenue 27,525,489
Public Works 104,844,583
Postal Service 316,364,879
Miscellaneous 98,250,682
Permanent appropriations 135,074,673

The postal service estimate is deductible from the total because its receipts are turned back to the treasury. That leaves $869,492,929 as the actual total of appropriations. Congress is asked to make, or $167,853,814 more than last year.

Not a single establishment of the government asked for less than was given last year. Many requests were made for increased business developments of the war in Europe.

The state department asked for many increases, including $142,000 for additional clerical force in the department, $35,000 additional for the salaries of charges de affaires and $25,000 for transportation and subsistence, and $200,000 instead of the $75,000 asked before to enable the president to meet unforeseen emergencies arising in the diplomatic consular service.

A large item in the treasury department's increases is $220,000 for collecting the income tax, an increase of $1,000,000 over last year which, among other things, will be used to hire 485 deputy collectors at $1,250 per year, compared with 127 in 1914. The treasury department wants $50,000 to enforce the cotton futures act.

The department of commerce asked for many increases for gathering information at home and abroad on commerce, industry and manufacturing. Among the items included are $250,000 to promote and develop the commercial interests of the United States and $100,000 to develop the same ends with particular reference to South and Central America. For commercial attaches abroad $225,000 instead of $100,000 was asked; and to investigate the cost of production and distribution of all articles which are or may be made the subject of tariff legislation, with special reference to foreign labor, price of raw materials and the conditions in foreign and domestic markets affecting the American product, with all facts pertinent to the duties of tariff officers in the administration of the tariff, $100,000 was asked. The same department asked $100,000 to investigate foreign markets for agricultural, mineral and forest products. An echo of heard in a request for an increase of $50,000 for the steamboat inspection service and of $3,000 for employment of inspectors to prevent overcrowding of passenger vessels.

Labor cancellations. The labor department asks, will need $75,000 this year in place of $25,000. The children's bureau asked for $17,000 more than last year.

The department of agriculture asked for $2,500,000, the same as last year, for eradication of foot and mouth disease, $45,750 to enforce the cotton futures act, and $119,250 to enforce the insecticide act.

Postmaster General Burleson again proposes to conduct the rural free delivery service for less than it has cost in previous years. His estimate for the service is put at $48,500,000 compared with $53,000,000 appropriated for the year which ends June 30 next.

The interstate commerce commission asked generally for little more than last year, but wants $3,000,000 more for physical valuation work. The federal trade commission, which came into being last March, asked for its first full year's work, $344,500 or about $100,000 more, most of which is to be expended in the salaries of attorneys, investigators and clerks.

The interior department wants $8,247,000 for the Alaska railroad, compared with $2,000,000 appropriated in 1915.

Both the secret service and bureau of investigation of the department of justice, which have been busy with investigations of an unusual character, asked for more money. The secret service, which received $135,000 and the bureau of investigation $550,000 from $487,000 in the request for an increase for the bureau for the first time appears a statement that part of the fund may be used in work for the state department. The department of justice asks for $250,000 instead of $200,000 to enforce the anti-trust laws.

One new feature of the estimates is the incorporation of a proposal for a government monopoly of telephone and telegraph service in Alaska, Porto Rico and the Hawaiian Islands. It is proposed that the wires in these territories be acquired for the postoffice department by proper proceedings after approval by the interstate commerce commission. The wires may be actually taken over by July 1, 1916. The postmaster general would be authorized to license private parties to construct and operate lines, but with the reservation that the government might buy them. The sum of $300,000 is asked for the purpose. The usual estimates are submitted for the support of western mints and assay offices which are the subject of attack at each session of congress.

The pension bill apparently is one of the few decreasing items. $160,355,000 being asked in place of $164,300,000 last year. For public buildings the estimates are about $3,600,000 less than last year.

For the Panama Canal exclusive of fortifications, etc., the estimate is $19,301,369 compared with $19,940,000 last year. For the reclamation service the estimate is $13,920,000 over $9,935,000 appropriated in 1915.

CUMMINS TO LEAD FIGHT ON WILSON'S POLICY OF DEFENSE

Iowa Senator, Seeking Republican Nomination, Will Oppose President's Preparedness Program.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Washington, Dec. 6.—Senator Cummins of Iowa, one of the principal candidates for the republican nomination for president, will nail the first plank in his platform of opposition to President Wilson by leading the fight in the senate on the administration national defense program.

The senator arrived in the capital last week, since which time he has been busy in the preparation of the bills which he will offer as substitutes for the administration measures.

Opposes Army Plan.
The contest promises to be a bitter one, particularly over the administration army bill in which President Wilson presents in the continental army features which are a "voluntary" trained and accustomed to arms.

Senator Cummins condemns the continental army scheme unqualifiedly. One of the principal provisions of his bill calls for the enlargement of the national guard which offers, he contends, the most feasible and effective means of training citizens for the defense of national defense. He would have the national guard exempt from strike and other police duty in all the states as the first step in developing the effectiveness of the militia.

"It is impossible to build up the guard as it should be built up," he said, "if its members are required to perform police duty. The states ought to find some other way of providing forces for police purposes."

The senator declined to go into details in discussion of the bills he is proposing, but said the legislation he proposes will embody a view on questions of national defense which he recently made public.

Statement of Cummins' View.
"If the military organization now known as the national guard," he said, "is to be maintained as a body of reserves it must be still further federalized and important changes must be made in its character and control. It is not correct to say that the required changes can be brought about without a collision with the constitution, but, passing the legal questions involved, the modifications which are necessary in order to make them ready for service in the event of war are:

"First, its officers of the line must be selected with reference to their education, training and competency, instead of their personal popularity."
"Second, both officers and enlisted men must receive a compensation which will enable them to close the year without pecuniary loss."

"Third, the community in which the men live must be made to understand that the time spent in the work of the guard is not only necessary for the welfare of the country but that the service is honorable and should be commended, rather than disparaged, those who are engaged in it."

Wants Well Trained Officers.
"I do not mention the length of service or time to be given each year in drill, maneuver and camp for these are subjects that must be determined by men of military skill and experience. It is obvious that such a militia must be provided with officers educated in the military science."

"These officers should not be withdrawn from civil life, for a comparatively small portion of their time will be required. They must, however, be competent, and to obtain such competency we must well concern a number of our useless army posts into schools, maintained by the general government, with students appointed from the states, and with a course of study that will fit young men for civil life but at the same time make them reasonably efficient in military affairs."

The graduates from these schools ought to become the officers of the militia, whether we recognize the state plan or adopt the federal system."

Urges Militia Plans.
Senator Cummins also favors government manufacture of war munitions. "I believe the government, as manufacturer of its own weapons and munitions of war," he said.

The senator will advocate the repeal of the Stamp taxes of the "war revenue" act. He believes in increasing the revenue from the income tax by reducing the exemption limit and increasing the surtax on large incomes. Mr. Cummins favors a national inheritance tax so adjusted as not to interfere with the imposition of death duties by the states.

Appropriate Place.
Peace at any price is much desired these days, but it is all right in the family.—Ohio State Journal.

WAR CLAIMS CLAIM TEXAN'S ATTENTION

Congressman Gregg of Texas, chairman of the war claims committee, will face the problem of drawing up a new plan for paying the millions of dollars in war claims against the United States dating from the civil war. Heretofore the claims were adjudicated by the court of claims and payments depended on the loyalty of the claimant. This clause in most cases prevented the payment of claims to southerners and at the last session, the clause was killed.

ESTIMATE EXPENSES FOR ARMY AND NAVY

ADMINISTRATION'S FIGURES ON COST OF ADEQUATE DEFENSE READY FOR CONGRESS.

FOR ALL DEPARTMENTS

Every Branch of Army and Navy Will Be Enlarged With Consequent Enormous Outlay of Funds.

Washington, December 6.—The administration's estimate of military and naval expenditures, including the first year's cost of the new national defense program, was sent to Congress today, with a total of $152,854,250 asked for the army and $211,513,072 for the navy.

For the two branches, the increase asked over the appropriations last year is about $124,000,000 exclusive of the amounts for fortifications and other items which may be included in a general scheme of military defenses. The entire plan calls for something over $150,000,000 in excess of the last appropriations.

The war department asks an increase of more than $4,000,000 for the Signal Corps, of which $3,700,000 is for aviation, $300,000 to be made immediately available with $50,000 more for the development of an aviation motor. For the pay of the army $60,700,320 is asked, an increase of more than $1,000,000 over last year. The quartermaster department asks for an increase of more than $4,000,000 for supplies, an amount of $7,000,000 for clothing, camp and equipment. The number of horses needed is represented by an increase of $555,000 in the estimates. In the Signal Corps $500,000 is asked for equipment of troops in place of $400,000 last year. The increase for ordnance stores—for the purchase and manufacture of ammunition for small arms, from $100,000 to $3,383,000, of $1,500,000 for grenades, an increase of $715,000 is made in the item for small arms target practice, including machine gun practice. For manufacturing, repairing and issuing arms at national arsenals $250,000 is asked, compared with $250,000 last year, and an increase of $1,250,000 for purchase, manufacture and test of rifles.

For the organized militia, $4,390,000 is estimated as necessary, compared with $250,000 last year with an increase of $500,000 for militia equipment. The military academy is estimated to cost about $350,000 more with provision for 770 cadets.

For the naval militia the Navy Department asks an increase of about $210,000. An armor plate plant is again suggested, to cost $1,000,000, 635,107 of which $211,702 is asked at once.

For the navy with 55,000 men instead of 48,000 as at present is put at $45,674,907, an increase from $41,240,000 last year and 6,000 apprentice seamen in place of 3,500. For comparison of the stocks and repairs on vessels in the commission, the estimate of $1,400,000, an increase of about $1,400,000.

For the pay of the Marine Corps including that of one additional brigadier general, other additional officers, an increase of about $400,000, $4,909,415 is asked. For maintenance of the corps the estimate is $4,655,741 compared with $3,000,000, $1,655,741 more than last year and the increase for the Marine Corps is put at $2,655,000.

For the navy's submarine torpedo boats heretofore provided the estimate is $5,282,593 against $1,241,344 last year. For submarine bases $1,000,000 is asked.

The big item in the new navy program is an estimate of $27,647,000 as the first year's appropriation for hulls and machinery of two battle ships, two battle cruisers, three scout cruisers, five destroyers, two gunboats, and four minesweepers, one fuel oil ship. This compared with last year's appropriation of $7,200,000 in last year's program. For the hulls and outfit of five fleet submarines $7,675,000 is asked, compared with $3,000,000 last year. For armor and armament $2,681,000, against $977,908 last year. For aviation $2,000,000 is asked, an increase of $1,000,000, for reserve ammunition $3,000,000, for which there was no appropriation last year.

One million dollars is sought for the proposed experimental laboratory to be placed at the disposal of the Naval Advisory Board.

Coast defense and fortification items include $2,533,000 for gun and mortar batteries and $2,311,500 for modernizing old gun batteries. $617,982 for fire control at fortifications and $226,700 for searchlights for harbor defense all of which show material increases. For submarine mine galleries, cable stations, etc., $254,060 is asked and for sites, forts and sea-coast defenses $1,887,000. For armament of these fortifications the estimate is $2,495,500, with a provision that the chief of Ordnance may contract for $3,500,000 more. The estimate for the purchase, and test of ammunition for seacoast cannon and the modernizing of projectiles on hand is $1,342,350 is the estimated cost, increased from $652,360 compared with $25,000 appropriated in 1915. The total increase in public works under the War Department including fortifications and defenses is put at $25,791,972 compared with $7,284,603 last year.

In the Panama Canal Zone the War Department wants $500,000 for seacoast batteries, $200,000 for submarine mines, $1,788,000 for armament of fortifications (an increase of more than $1,000,000 over last year), $660,000 for military trails, a new item, $4,311,600 for arms in quartermaster's storehouses. The total increase for canal fortifications is about $5,600,000. The following sums are estimates for navy yards:

Boston, $47,500; New York, $75,000; Philadelphia, $75,000; Washington, $233,000; Norfolk, $465,000; Charleston, S. C., $12,000; Mare Island, Calif., $75,000; Puget Sound, Washington, $15,000; Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, naval station, $716,000.

Other navy estimates include $286,000 for guns and munitions, $300,000 for various parts of the country; $50,000 for the naval proving grounds at Indian Head, Md.; $95,000 for the naval torpedo station at Newport, R. I.; and $460,000 for fuel-oil storage at Guantanamo, Cuba.

ASSIGN DATES FOR STATE FAIR IN 1916

Wisconsin Fair Will Be Held Between Sept. 9 and 17—Board Meets Tuesday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., Dec. 6.—The Wisconsin state fair will be held between the dates of Sept. 9 to Sept. 17. These dates were given to Wisconsin by the American Association of Fairs and Expositions during its twenty-fifth annual convention at the Auditorium in Chicago on Dec. 2 and 3. Wisconsin will follow Minnesota, as usual.

Wisconsin was represented by C. P. Norgard, commissioner of agriculture; Oliver E. Remy, secretary of the state fair; R. J. White of Milwaukee and C. W. Harvey of Beaver Dam, members of the advisory board, and C. W. Hart of Watertown, secretary of the county and district fairs of Wisconsin.

One of the speakers before the convention was Dr. Charles McCarthy of Madison, Wis., who officiated as starting at the Wisconsin state fair, also attended the convention.

Plans for the 1916 state fair will be discussed and outlined at a meeting of the advisory board on Tuesday and Wednesday in the senate chamber of the capitol.

One of the important questions to be decided is whether the next state fair will be open for eight days or remain open but five days, as in past years.

PARCEL POST LIBRARY HAS FEW FICTION READERS
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., Dec. 6.—While the reason of books borrowed from city libraries are about 70 per cent fiction, an investigation of the orders received by the Wisconsin Parcel Post library show that about 24 per cent of the orders are fiction. Secretary M. S. Duggan, secretary of the Wisconsin free library commission, says that the reason for this difference is that people on farms patronize the parcel post library most and they seem to be interested in history, biography, science and practical problems of life. The ratio of orders received show per cent were for books on agriculture and home economics. The Wisconsin library commission maintains a parcel post library and sends books to citizens of Wisconsin on the payment of the cost of transporting the books by parcel post. Many of the orders are from lumber camps of northern Wisconsin.

PREDICTS A COTTON FAMINE AFTER WAR IS OVER IN ALL NATIONS.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Dec. 6.—A world-wide cotton famine will follow the close of the war, according to Professor John Todd, University college, Nottingham. He urges Great Britain to develop new fields in India, Egypt and the Sudan. He reasons that the temporary fall in prices at the beginning of the war curtailed cotton production and that the renewed demand at the close of the war, combined with a short acreage, will cause the famine. Russia, he says, should show her wisdom in developing cotton fields in Turkestan and Trans-Caucasia, which adequate supply her. Germany has done the same thing in the Levant to a certain extent. Both the quality and quantity of cotton for Great Britain can be added to in India, Egypt and the Sudan, he says, adding that cotton growing is a good business to get into now.
